One of the key aspects of the modern diversity of mailing products available from a company like Total is that absolutely every type and size of organisation can benefit from expert advice and installing a product to fit their profile – and a recent notable case in point is the Aireworth Vets practice in Keighley, West Yorkshire.

This thriving and popular service is to all intents and purposes a fully fledged SME, and offers general veterinary services and diagnostic tests for all manner of animals across a wide geographic area, and as such always needs to “make the most of the post”. Having decided that their existing franking machine was too old and obsolete, Practice Manager Alice Macnab decided it was time to invest in the appropriate products to enable them to always be as efficient and cost-effective as possible. The outcome is a new, compact Total DM125i franking machine as well as a 2.5kg integrated scale. The machine is also maintained under service cover, and the practice also purchases consumables such as cartridges and labels.

The overall effect ensures that they never actually run out of stamps as such, and that the postage rate is always correct – avoiding overspend – and considerable time is saved on trips to the post office. This is all especially important given the wide variation of outgoing post, including everything from basic letters to medical samples and products. The franking technology also portrays Aireworth Vets in the most modern and professional aspect, and ensures that external items arrive quickly and safely.
